Full job description and online application at <http://www.csuci.edu/careers/>

Review begins 1 November 2016

The Art Program at California State University Channel Islands is inviting applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Art History with a specialization in Non-Western Art of the Americas. Position duties include: teaching lower and upper division undergraduate art history, general education, and interdisciplinary courses; developing curriculum in the area of specialization; collaborating with art and art history faculty on various program activities and projects; and contributing to the academic excellence of CI through service at the department and university level.

The ideal candidate should have research focused on Latin American, Pre-Columbian, Chicano, or Indigenous American art and architecture; teaching experience at the college level (beyond the teaching assistant level), or museum experience in area of specialization; demonstrated ability to effectively use technology for educational purposes; and a commitment to scholarly and creative activities related to the area of specialization as demonstrated in conventional or alternative professional venues, including but not limited to print and electronic publications, conferences, curatorial projects and/or community engagement. Preferred qualifications include: advanced language skills in Spanish and/or an indigenous language; interest or experience in interdisciplinary teaching and research; interest or experience in innovative educational projects and curriculum design for majors and general education students; interest or experience in digital art history. The candidate must have a PhD in Art History or a related field by the time of appointment (August 2017).

The application materials must include:

- 1) the online application
- 2) a cover letter explaining the candidate's qualifications for and interest in this position
- 3) a current CV
- 4) a statement of teaching philosophy
- 5) two or three syllabi of courses taught and/or documentation of educational projects developed
- 6) student evaluations, if available
- 7) a statement of scholarly and creative activities and/or community engagement
- 8) two samples of scholarly writing

Placing students at the center of the educational experience, California State University Channel Islands provides undergraduate and graduate education that facilitates learning within and across disciplines through integrative approaches, emphasizes experiential and service learning, and graduates students with multicultural and international perspectives. CI is committed to recruiting individuals who are dedicated to furthering inclusive excellence in our campus community. We seek to enhance our diverse University population, welcoming people from all backgrounds, to sustain an environment in which all can thrive, create, work and learn.
